

GAMES, GAMES, GAMES

Games are fun for me
Games are fun for you
Games are fun to play
Games can teach us too...

Games are a wonderful opportunity to teach through play. They provide an opportunity for children to explore movement, math, cooperation, creative thinking, logic, planning, self-control, respect and more. Our games class is set up in rotation of large movement playground type games and board/card games. Classes include discussion about good sportsmanship and respect for others and materials. The large movement classes provide an opportunity for children to explore how their body moves in relation to the world and others. The skill of team work is explored through these games. The board/card game classes offer children a chance to experience new games and play with peers. Children can explore and develop critical thinking and logic skills. We are excited to offer this class again next semester.
